

No. 08-30601

IN THE
United States Court of Appeals
FOR THE FIFTH CIRCUIT

IN RE JOSEPH L. MILLER, II, SHELLEY L. MILLER, Debtors.

DAIMLERCHRYSLER FINANCIAL SERVICES AMERICAS, LLC, Appellant,

—v.—

JOSEPH L. MILLER, II, SHELLEY L. MILLER, KEITH A. RODRIGUEZ, Appellees.

ON DIRECT APPEAL FROM THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT
FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA
NO. 07-20542

BRIEF OF AMICUS CURIAE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF CONSUMER BANKRUPTCY ATTORNEYS IN SUPPORT OF DEBTOR
AND AFFIRMANCE OF THE BANKRUPTCY COURT DECISION

CAREY D. EBERT
1726 Chadwick Court, Suite 100
Hurst, Texas 76054
(817) 268-2468
Principal Attorney for
Amicus Curiae

On the Brief:

TARA TWOMEY, ESQ.
*National Association of Consumer
Bankruptcy Attorneys*

October 24, 2008

CORPORATE DISCLOSURE STATEMENT AND CERTIFICATE OF INTERESTED PERSONS

DaimlerChrysler Financial Services Americas, LLC v. Miller, et al. –
No. 08-30601

Pursuant to Rule 26.1 of the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure Amicus Curiae the National Association of Consumer Bankruptcy Attorneys makes the following disclosure:

1) For non-governmental corporate parties please list all parent corporations.
NONE.

2) For non-governmental corporate parties please list all publicly held companies that hold 10% or more of the party's stock. NONE.

3) If there is a publicly held corporation which is not a party to the proceeding before this Court but which has a financial interest in the outcome of the proceeding, please identify all such parties and specify the nature of the financial interest or interests. NONE.

4) In all bankruptcy appeals counsel for the debtor or trustee of the bankruptcy estate must list: 1) the debtor, if not identified in the case caption; 2) the members of the creditors' committee or the top 20 unsecured creditors; and, 3) any entity not named in the caption which is an active participant in the bankruptcy proceedings. If the debtor or trustee is not participating in the appeal, this information must be provided by appellant.
NOT APPLICABLE.

Pursuant to 5th Circuit Local Rule 28.2.1, the undersigned counsel of record certifies that the following listed persons and entities as described in the fourth sentence of Rule 28.2.1 have an interest in the outcome of this case. These representations are made in order that the judges of this court may evaluate possible disqualification or recusal.

Carey D. Ebert, Attorney of record for the National Association of Consumer Bankruptcy Attorneys.

Carey D. Ebert
Attorney for the National Association of Consumer Bankruptcy Attorneys

Dated: October 23, 2008

TABLE OF CONTENTS

CORPORATE DISCLOSURE STATEMENT AND CERTIFICATE OF INTERESTED PERSONS.....	ii
TABLE OF AUTHORITIES	v
STATEMENT OF INTEREST OF NACBA AS AMICUS CURIAE	1
STATEMENT OF FACTS	3
SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT	4
STATUTORY FRAMEWORK.....	6
I. The Claims Process in Bankruptcy.....	6
II. The Bankruptcy Code, Not State Law Controls in this Case.....	7
A. Secured Creditor’s Rights Outside Bankruptcy	8
B. Secured Creditor’s Rights Inside Bankruptcy	9
III. The effect of the hanging paragraph is only to alter the treatment of secured claims under section 1325(a)(5), not allowance or status, of a claim in bankruptcy.. ..	12
ARGUMENT	14
IV. The 2005 amendments to section 1325(a) do not change the debtor’s ability to fully provide for an allowed secured claim by surrendering the property securing that claim pursuant to section 1325(a)(5)(C)	14
V. The Circuit Court of Appeals decisions reaching the opposite conclusion are wrongly decided.....	17
A. Section 506 does apply in the surrender situation	18
B. Bankruptcy law, not State law, determines the creditor’s allowed unsecured claim.....	20

C. Eradication of the estate’s interest is immaterial20

VI. The Creditor’s best guess as to legislative intent is insufficient to overcome the plain language of the statute.24

CONCLUSION.....28

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

Assoc. Commercial Corp. v. Rash,
520 U.S. 953 (1997).....19

In re Bailey,
153 F.3d 718 (4th Cir. 1998)(unpublished).....10

In re Ballard,
526 F.3d 634 (10th Cir. 2008)8, 15

Barash v. Public Fin. Corp.,
658 F.2d 504 (7th Cir. 1981)10, 11

In re Barrett,
2008 WL 4378739 (11th Cir. Sept. 29, 2008).....8, 17

Burlingham v. Crouse,
228 U.S. 459, 33 S.Ct. 564 (1913)6

In re Brown,
346 B.R. 868 (Bankr. N.D. Fla. 2006)24

Capital One Auto Fin. v. Osborn,
515 F.3d 817 (8th Cir. 2008)8, 15, 17

In re Carver,
338 B.R. 521 (Bankr. S.D. Ga. 2006).....14

Circuit City Stores v. Adams,
532 U.S. 105, 121 S. Ct. 1302, (2001)26

In re Day,
247 B.R. 898 (Bankr. M.D. Ga. 2000)16

In re Dean,
537 F.3d 1315 (11th Cir. 2008)14

In re Duke,
 345 B.R. 806 (Bankr. W.D. Ky. 2006).....12

In re Eubanks,
 219 B.R. 468 (B.A.P. 6th Cir. 1998)16, 17

In re Ezell,
 338 B.R. 330 (Bankr. E.D. Tenn. 2006).....17

In re Fareed,
 262 B.R. 761 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2001) 11, 16

Garcia v. United States,
 469 U.S. 70, 105 S. Ct. 479 (1984)26

In re Gentry,
 2006 WL 3392947 (Bankr. E.D. Tenn. Nov. 22, 2006)..... 19

General Motors Acceptance Corp. v. Peaslee,
 373 B.R. 252 (W.D.N.Y. 2007).....25

Johnson v. First Nat. Bank of Montevideo, Minn.,
 719 F.2d 270 (8th Cir. 1983) 16

Kawaauhau v. Geiger,
 118 S.Ct. 974 (1998)..... 1

Kelly v. Robinson,
 479 U.S. 36, 107 S.Ct. 353 (1986)16

In re Kenney,
 2007 WL 1412921 (Bankr. E.D. May 10, 2007)
rev'd Tidewater Fin. Co. v. Kenney, 531 F.3d 312 (4th Cir. 2008)24

In re Long,
 519 F.3d 288 (6th Cir. 2007)7, 17

In re Nicely,
 349 B.R. 600 (Bankr. W.D. Mo. 2006)19

In re Nichols,
440 F.3d 850 (6th Cir. 2006)21

In re Osborn,
363 B.R. 72 (B.A.P. 8th Cir. 2007),
rev'd Capital One Auto Fin. v. Osborn, 515 F.3d 817 (8th Cir. 2008).....15

Pacific Gas and Elec. Co., v. State Energy Resources Conservation and Dev. Comm'n,
461 U.S. 190, 103 S. Ct. 1713 (1983)21

In re Particka,
355 B.R. 616 (Bankr. E.D. Mich. 2006).....12, 22

In re Payne,
347 B.R. 278 (Bankr. S.D. Ohio 2006)12

In re Pinti,
363 B.R. 369 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2007)12, 18, 22

In re Quick,
371 B.R. 459 (B.A.P. 10th Cir. 2007), rev'd Ballard, 526 F.3d 634 (10th Cir. 2008);15, 25

In re Rodriguez,
375 B.R. 535 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2007)9, 13, 20, 22

In re Sanchez,
372 B.R. 289 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2007)6

In re Tanner,
217 F.3d 1357 (11th Cir. 2000).....1

Tidewater Fin. Co. v. Kenney,
531 F.3d 312 (4th Cir. 2008)7, 17

Travelers Cas. and Sur. Co. of America v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co., 127 S.Ct. 1199 (2007).....9

In re Turkowitch,
 355 B.R. 120 (Bankr. E.D. Wis. 2006);12, 22, 23

United States v. Ron Pair Enters., Inc.,
 489 U.S. 235, 109 S.Ct. 2197 (1991)11

In re Vanduyn,
 374 B.R. 896 (M.D. Fla. 2007).....13, 21

In re Wampler,
 345 B.R. 730 (Bankr. D. Kan. 2006).....14

In re Williams,
 2007 WL 2122131 (Bankr. E.D. Va. July 19, 2007).....18, 19, 24

In re Wright,
 493 F.3d 829 (7th Cir. 2007) 10, 13, 17, 20, 22, 24

In re Zehrung,
 351 B.R. 675 (W.D. Wis. 2006)20, 25

Statutes

11 U.S.C. § 101(5)6

11 U.S.C. § 5017

11 U.S.C. § 5029

11 U.S.C. § 502(a)7

11 U.S.C. § 502(b)3, 7

11 U.S.C. § 506passim

11 U.S.C. § 1322(b)(2).....22

11 U.S.C. § 13259

11 U.S.C. § 1325(a)1, 4

11 U.S.C. § 1325(a)(5).....passim

11 U.S.C. § 1325(a)(5)(B)passim

11 U.S.C. § 1325(a)(5)(C)passim

11 U.S.C. § 1325(a)(9).....12

VA. CODE ANN. §§8.9-503, 8.9-504.....8

Rules

Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001(f).....7

Legislative History

H.R. Rep. No. 95-595 , 95th Cong., 1st Sess. 356 (1977)9

S. Rep. No. 95-989, 95th Cong., 2d Sess. 68 (1978).....9

Other Authorities

4 COLLIER ON BANKRUPTCY ¶¶ 502.1, 502.03, 506.01
(A. Resnick and H. Sommer, eds. 15th ed. rev. Dec. 2007).....7, 9, 10

David G. Epstein, Bankruptcy Claims Process: Review and Overview,
Practicing Law Institute, 898 PLI/Comm 149 (Nov. 2007)6, 10

Official Bankruptcy Form 10.....7

STATEMENT OF INTEREST OF NACBA AS AMICUS CURIAE

Incorporated in 1992, the National Association of Consumer Bankruptcy Attorneys ("NACBA") is a non-profit organization of more than 2,600 consumer bankruptcy attorneys nationwide. Member attorneys and their law firms represent debtors in an estimated 500,000 bankruptcy cases filed each year.

NACBA's corporate purposes include education of the bankruptcy bar and the community at large on the uses and misuses of the consumer bankruptcy process. Additionally, NACBA advocates nationally on issues that cannot adequately be addressed by individual member attorneys. It is the only national association of attorneys organized for the specific purpose of protecting the rights of consumer bankruptcy debtors. NACBA has filed amicus curiae briefs in various courts seeking to protect the rights of consumer bankruptcy debtors. See, e.g., Kawaauhau v. Geiger, 118 S.Ct. 974 (1998); In re Tanner, 217 F.3d 1357 (11th Cir. 2000).

The NACBA membership has a vital interest in the outcome of this case. NACBA members primarily represent individuals, many of whom own motor vehicles. The 2005 amendments to section 1325(a) added an unenumerated, hanging paragraph at the end of the section that deals with certain claims secured by motor vehicles. The effect of this paragraph has been widely debated by creditors, debtors, counsel and commentators. This case affords the court an opportunity to address this debate as it pertains to the surrender of these vehicles.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

In this case, the Creditor filed a Proof of Claim in the amount of $34,050.98, the outstanding payoff balance due at the time the Debtor filed his petition for relief. Daimler's Brief at 7. The Creditor indicated that the nature of the claim was "secured." Id. No party in interest objected to Creditor's proof of claim, and therefore it was deemed allowed. See 11 U.S.C. § 502(b). As a result, Creditor held an "allowed secured claim" in the full amount of the debt—$34,050.98.

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

The Bankruptcy Code uses an elaborate system to dictate the order in which claims are paid and in what amount. A fundamental part of this system is the claims process that determines whether a debt is actually owed to any given creditor, the amount of the outstanding debt to each creditor, and the nature of each obligation (e.g., secured versus unsecured, priority or nonpriority) for purposes of the bankruptcy case. Within bankruptcy, the “allowance,” “status” and “treatment” of creditors’ claims are determined by Bankruptcy Code, not state law. This case concerns the effect that the hanging paragraph of section 1325(a) has on the status and treatment of covered claims.

If Creditor has an “allowed secured claim” in the full amount of the debt as a result of the hanging paragraph, it cannot also have an allowed unsecured claim. The 2005 amendments to section 1325(a) in no way altered the applicability of section 1325(a)(5)(C) to “allowed secured claims” provided for by the plan. Prior the 2005 amendments debtors were permitted to surrender collateral in full satisfaction of the Creditor’s “allowed secured claim.” Such a result has not been modified by the addition of the hanging paragraph.

The Circuit Courts of Appeals that have turned to state law, over the Bankruptcy Code, to determine the rights of the parties in bankruptcy are simply wrongly decided. Amicus urges this court not to blindly follow these, which have consistently failed to explain why the Bankruptcy Code is not controlling in this case.

STATUTORY FRAMEWORK

I. The Claims Process in Bankruptcy

“Bankruptcy is all about ‘claims’.”¹ The claims process is fundamental to achieving the two primary objectives of the Bankruptcy Code: a fresh start for the debtor and the fair and orderly repayment of creditors to the extent possible. Burlingham v. Crouse, 228 U.S. 459, 474, 33 S.Ct. 564 (1913); In re Sanchez, 372 B.R. 289, 296-98 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2007). The Code establishes an elaborate system that dictates the order in which claims are paid and in what amount. The claims process determines whether a debt is actually owed to any given creditor, the amount of the outstanding debt to each creditor, and the nature of each obligation (e.g., secured versus unsecured, priority or nonpriority) for purposes of the bankruptcy case. Resolution of each of these issues enables creditors to participate in the distribution of the estate’s assets in accordance with the rules and priorities set forth in the Bankruptcy Code.²

The term “claim” is broadly defined in section 101 of the Bankruptcy Code. 11 U.S.C. § 101(5). Generally, only claims that arise prior to the

¹ David G. Epstein, Bankruptcy Claims Process: Review and Overview, Practising Law Institute, 898 PLI/Comm 149 (Nov. 2007).

² Distribution of the debtor’s assets in bankruptcy is almost always a zero-sum game because the claims against the debtor typically far exceed the value of the estate. To the extent one creditor or class of creditors gets paid more other creditors will be paid less.

commencement of the case—“pre-petition”—are allowable, and the amount and nature of a creditor’s claim are determined as of the date of the filing of the petition. See 11 U.S.C. § 502(b); 4 COLLIER ON BANKRUPTCY ¶ 502.03 (A. Resnick and H. Sommer, eds. 15th ed. rev. Dec. 2007). In chapter 7 and chapter 13, creditors provide notice of their claims to the court, trustee, debtor and any other party in interest by filing a Proof of Claim with the court. See 11 U.S.C. § 501; Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001(f); Official Bankruptcy Form 10. A Proof of Claim, unless a successful objection is filed, will establish the amount and nature of the claim for purposes of the bankruptcy case. 11 U.S.C. § 502(a).

II. The Bankruptcy Code, Not State Law Controls in this Case.

As discussed above, the claims process is an elaborate system unique to the Bankruptcy Code. Once a debtor has filed for bankruptcy, the Bankruptcy Code, not state law, controls the “allowance,” “status, and “treatment” of the creditor’s claim. While the majority of bankruptcy courts have understood this basic principle, the Circuit Court of Appeals addressing this issue have simply failed to understand the preeminence of the bankruptcy code in determining the treatment of the secured claim in a bankruptcy proceeding. See Tidewater Fin. Co. v. Kenney, 531 F.3d 312 (4th Cir. 2008); In re Long, 519 F.3d 288 (6th Cir. 2007); In re Wright, 492 B.3d 829 (7th Cir. 2007); Capital One Auto Fin. v. Osborn, 515 F.3d 817 (8th Cir. 2008); In re Ballard, 526 F.3d 634 (10th Cir. 2008); In re Barrett, 2008 WL 4378739 (11th Cir. Sept. 29, 2008). Despite the fact that under the plain language of the Bankruptcy Code, the debtor may satisfy an “allowed secured claim” by surrendering the collateral, the circuit courts have inexplicably turned to state law to further determine the rights of the parties. Amicus urges this court not to blindly follow the other Circuit Courts of Appeals, which have consistently failed explain why the Bankruptcy Code is not controlling in this case.

A. Secured Creditor’s Rights Outside Bankruptcy – Outside bankruptcy, under state debtor-creditor law, a secured creditor whose borrower has defaulted may seize the collateral, sell it at auction, and keep the proceeds of the sale up to the amount owed. See, e.g., LA. STAT. ANN. §§ 6:966; 10:9-615. If the proceeds exceed the amount owed, the secured creditor must return the surplus to the debtor. Id. If the proceeds fall short of the amount owed, the secured creditor may usually attempt to collect the deficiency from the debtor using the remedies available to unsecured creditors. Id.

B. Secured Creditor's Rights Inside Bankruptcy – Inside

bankruptcy, the “allowance,” “status” and “treatment” of creditors’ claims³ are determined by Bankruptcy Code, not state law. See, e.g., 11 U.S.C. §§ 502, 506, 1325; see also 4 COLLIER ON BANKRUPTCY ¶ 502.01 (“The concept of allowability of claims is exclusively a bankruptcy concept”). “Claim allowance” is determined by section 502, which establishes the validity and amount of the creditor’s claim. Section 502 does not address the status or treatment of a secured claim in a case, but merely creates a threshold for determining whether an asserted claim or interest is eligible for distribution from the estate, and if so, in what amount.⁴ 4 COLLIER ON BANKRUPTCY ¶

³ Consistent with the Bankruptcy Code’s focus on the treatment of claims, it has been observed that section 506 effectively “abolishes the use of the terms ‘secured creditor’ and ‘unsecured creditor’ and substitutes in their places the terms ‘secured claim’ and ‘unsecured claim.’” H.R. Rep. No. 95-595, 95th Cong., 1st Sess. 356 (1977); S. Rep. No. 95-989, 95th Cong., 2d Sess. 68 (1978).

⁴ The court in In re Rodriguez, 375 B.R. 535 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2007), takes away the wrong message from the recently decided Supreme Court case of Travelers Cas. and Sur. Co. of America v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co., 127 S.Ct. 1199 (2007). The Rodriguez court suggested that creditors holding claims covered by the hanging paragraph are entitled to unsecured deficiency claims unless there is a basis in section 502 to disallow the claim. 375 B.R. at 545. In so stating, it is clear that the Rodriguez court conflates the roles played by section 502, 506 and 1325 in the claims process. The issue to be decided in that case and in this one is not about claim allowance or disallowance under section 502. In this case, the Creditor’s claim is an “allowed secured claim” in the full amount of the debt. No party has challenged that fact. The issue presented is whether the status and treatment of that “allowed secured claim” is affected by the hanging paragraph.

502.01. The secured or unsecured status of a claim is determined by section 506. See In re Bailey, 153 F.3d 718 (4th Cir. 1998)(table, unpublished)(“[t]he determination of an allowed claim’s secured status is an independent inquiry governed by 11 U.S.C. § 506”)(emphasis added); Barash v. Public Fin. Corp., 658 F.2d 504, 507 (7th Cir. 1981)(“The effect of § 506(a) is to classify claims, not creditors, as secured and unsecured.”).⁵ “Under section 506’s definition of ‘secured claim,’ only a creditor with a lien on property that is ‘property of the estate’ has a ‘secured claim’ in a bankruptcy case.”⁶ For example, a creditor with a lien on property that is not property of the estate does not have a ‘secured claim’ under the Bankruptcy Code. Thus, while state law determines whether or not the amount owed to a creditor is secured by a lien on property, the Bankruptcy Code determines the extent to which a claim is considered secured for purposes of the bankruptcy case. See 4 COLLIER ON BANKRUPTCY ¶ 506.01 (“section 506(a) describes the extent to which an allowed claim is to be treated as a secured claim for purposes of the Code, as well as how a secured claim is to be valued”); see also United States v. Ron Pair Enters., Inc., 489 U.S. 235, 238-39 (1989)(explaining that section 506 “governs the definition and treatment of secured claims.”); Barash, 658 F.2d at 507.

⁵ The Seventh Circuit in In re Wright, 493 F.3d 829 (7th Cir. 2007), misunderstands the claims process when it states that “Creditors don’t need § 506 to create, allow, or recognize security interests, which rest on contracts (and the UCC) rather than federal law.” 492 F.3d at 833. As discussed further below, the problem with Wright’s reasoning is that it completely ignores the fundamental nature of the claims process in bankruptcy. The classification of “claims,” unlike creditors’ interests under state law, and the distribution of assets based on those claims in a bankruptcy proceeding are clearly based on federal bankruptcy law.

⁶ Epstein, supra note 1 at 155.

Section 506(a)(1) bifurcates claims into secured and unsecured portions depending on the value of the bankruptcy estate’s interest in the collateral and the amount of the debt. The secured portion of an allowed claim is an “allowed secured claim,” while the remaining amount is considered an “allowed unsecured claim.”

In chapter 13, treatment of “allowed secured claims”—claims that have been allowed under section 502 and to the extent they are determined to have secured status under section 506—is governed, in part, by section 1325(a)(5). See In re Fareed, 262 B.R. 761 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2001)(explaining that the “‘secured claim’, arising from collateral valuation under § 506, if allowed under § 502, authorizes a secured creditor to demand the plan treatment specified in § 1325(a)(5)”). Specifically, section 1325(a)(5) states that the court shall confirm a proposed chapter 13 plan if, “with respect to each allowed secured claim provided for by the plan” the creditor accepts the plan, the debtor affords the creditor’s claim the treatment specified under section 1325(a)(5)(B), or the debtor surrenders the property.

III. The Effect of the Hanging Paragraph is Only to Alter the Treatment of Secured Claims Under Section 1325(a)(5), Not Allowance or Status, of a Claim in Bankruptcy.

The 2005 amendments to the Bankruptcy Code added a new paragraph to the end of section 1325(a)(9) (hereinafter the “hanging paragraph”). It states in relevant part:

For purposes of paragraph (5), section 506 shall not apply to a claim described in that paragraph if the creditor has a purchase money security interest securing the debtor that is the subject of the claim, ...

This paragraph plainly and clearly makes section 506 inapplicable for purposes of section 1325(a)(5) to a claim based on a purchase money security interest in a motor vehicle obtained within 910 days of the filing of the petition. While most courts have agreed that the statute is unambiguous on this point,⁷ courts have differed dramatically on what it means to say that section 506 does not apply.

⁷ See, e.g., In re Pinti, 363 B.R. 369 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2007); In re Turkowitch, 355 B.R. 120 (Bankr. E.D. Wis. 2006); In re Particka, 355 B.R. 616 (Bankr. E.D. Mich. 2006); In re Payne, 347 B.R. 278 (Bankr. S.D. Ohio 2006)(finding the language of the hanging paragraph “unambiguous and clear”); In re Brown, 346 B.R. 868 (Bankr. N.D. Fla. 2006); but see In re Duke, 345 B.R. 806 (Bankr. W.D. Ky. 2006)(finding language of hanging paragraph ambiguous).

As a preliminary matter it is important to note that several courts considering the effect of the hanging paragraph have construed its effect either too broadly or too narrowly. Again, the hanging paragraph makes section 506 inapplicable only for purposes of section 1325(a)(5). For all other sections of the Bankruptcy Code dealing with the allowance, status and treatment of claims, section 506 continues to be relevant even for creditors with claims falling within the ambit of the hanging paragraph. Courts, such as In re Wright, 492 F.3d 829 (7th Cir. 2007) and In re Rodriguez, 375 B.R. 535 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2007), which turn to state law to find a deficiency claim, fail to recognize that the federal bankruptcy claims process continues to control the allowance and the secured status of the creditor's claim. The hanging paragraph only affects the treatment of a covered claim under section 1325(a)(5).

Additionally, the plain language of the hanging paragraph clearly affects all of section 1325(a)(5). Its applicability is not simply limited to section 1325(a)(5)(B). See In re Vanduyn, 374 B.R. 896, 899 (M.D. Fla. 2007); see Section V, infra.

Initially, a small minority of courts held that creditors with claims covered by the hanging paragraph do not have "allowed secured claims," and are therefore not entitled to treatment under section 1325(a)(5). In re

Wampler, 345 B.R. 730 (Bankr. D. Kan. 2006)(910-car creditor does not have an “allowed secured claim” but has an allowed claim for the entire prepetition debt without post-petition interest); In re Carver, 338 B.R. 521 (Bankr. S.D. Ga. 2006)(910 car claims not “allowed secured claims”). By contrast, the vast majority of courts found that creditors holding such claims have “allowed secured claims” in the full amount of the debt. To date, the law appears fairly well-settled that the hanging paragraph simply eliminates the debtor’s ability to bifurcate the creditor’s claim pursuant to section 506 for purposes of applying section 1325(a)(5). See, e.g., In re Dean, 537 F.3d 1315 (11th Cir. 2008)(910 car claims are allowed secured claims in the full amount of the debt). Indeed, Creditor in this case filed a proof of claim stating that it was secured to the full amount of the debt.

ARGUMENT

IV. The 2005 amendments to section 1325(a) do not alter the debtors’ ability to fully provide for an allowed secured claim by surrendering the property securing that claim pursuant to section 1325(a)(5)(C).

Section 1325(a)(5) sets forth the criteria for the treatment of allowed secured claims provided for by the plan. A plan is entitled to confirmation if, with respect to each allowed secured claim provided for in the plan, 1) the creditor accepts the plan; 2) the debtor surrenders the collateral; or 3) the debtor treats the claim as provided for in section 1325(a)(5)(B). Put another way, the holder of an allowed secured claim has a right only to demand that the plan, in providing for the allowed secured claim, satisfy one of the alternatives in section 1325(a)(5). In this case, the debtor has elected to treat the creditor's 'allowed secured claim' by surrendering the collateral. According to section 1325(a)(5) of the Bankruptcy Code, debtor's plan, which surrenders the collateral, is entitled to confirmation without any further treatment of the Creditor's claim.

Assuming⁸ that Creditor's claim is an allowed secured claim in the full amount of the debt and within the scope of section 1325(a)(5), section 1325(a)(5)(C) clearly permits the debtor to completely provide for the allowed secured claim by surrendering the motor vehicle. See In re Quick, 371 B.R. 459 (B.A.P. 10th Cir. 2007), rev'd sub nom In re Ballard, 526 F.3d 634 (10th Cir. 2008); In re Osborn, 363 B.R. 72 (B.A.P. 8th Cir. 2007), rev'd Capital One Auto Fin. v. Osborn, 515 F.3d 817 (8th Cir. 2008). There is no question that prior to the enactment of BAPCPA and based on the plain language of the statute, a chapter 13 debtor could surrender property securing a claim in full satisfaction of the creditor's allowed secured claim.

⁸ As noted above, some courts have found that creditors with hanging paragraph claims do not have "allowed secured claims" under the Bankruptcy Code, and are therefore not entitled to treatment pursuant to section 1325(a)(5).

See, e.g., In re Eubanks, 219, B.R. 468, 473 (B.A.P. 6th Cir. 1998)(“Section 1325(a)(5)(C) permits a Chapter 13 debtor to satisfy an ‘allowed secured claim’ by surrendering the property securing the claim.”); In re Fareed, 262 B.R. 761, 764 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2001)(same); In re Day, 247 B.R. 898, 901 (Bankr. M.D. Ga. 2000)(same). No amendments were made to section 1325(a)(5)(C) as part of BAPCPA. Thus, the application of section 1325(a)(5)(C) to allowed secured claims provided for by the plan has not changed. See Kelly v. Robinson, 479 U.S. 36, 36-37, 107 S.Ct. 353 (1986)(“If Congress intends for legislation to change the interpretation of a judicially created concept, it makes that intent specific.”); Johnson v. First Nat. Bank of Montevideo, Minn., 719 F.2d 270 (8th Cir. 1983)(and cases cited)(“[A]bsent a clear manifestation of contrary intent, a newly enacted or revised statute is presumed to be harmonious with existing law and its judicial construction.”).

Creditor argues that pre-2005, when the chapter 13 debtor chose to surrender collateral under § 1325(a)(5)(C), a secured creditor disposed of its collateral in accordance with applicable nonbankruptcy law, and was entitled to file an unsecured claim for any remaining balance.” Creditor Brief at 13. It is true that creditors, both before and even after the 2005 amendments, can file an unsecured claim after surrender of collateral—but only if the allowed secured claim was less than the total debt owed. See Eubanks, 219 B.R. at 473. In this case, the allowed secured claim ($34,050.98) equals the total debt owed ($34,050.98). Under federal bankruptcy law, surrender of collateral pursuant to 1325(a)(5)(C) satisfies the creditor's "allowed secured claim." State law does not spring into the picture and recreate a claim that has already been fully dealt with by the Bankruptcy Code.

V. The Court of Appeals decisions reaching the opposite conclusion are wrongly decided.

While the majority of bankruptcy courts have determined that an "allowed secured claim" is fully satisfied by the surrender of the collateral securing the debt, the Circuit Courts of Appeals have held otherwise. See, e.g., See In re Tidewater Fin. Co. v. Kenney, 531 F.3d 312 (4th Cir. 2008); In re Long, 519 F.3d 288 (6th Cir. 2007); In re Wright, 492 B.3d 829 (7th Cir. 2007); Capital One Auto Fin. v. Osborn, 515 F.3d 817 (8th Cir. 2008); In re Ballard, 526 F.3d 634 (10th Cir. 2008); In re Barrett, 2008 WL 4378739 (11th Cir. Sept. 29, 2008). The Circuit Courts and a handful of bankruptcy courts holding that full satisfaction of an allowed secured claim is not permitted base their decisions three lines of reasoning, each of which is flawed: 1) that section 506 is irrelevant in the context of surrender under 1325(a)(5)(C); 2) that state law determines the right to an unsecured claim; and, 3) that surrender eradicates the estate's interest in the collateral. See In re Pinti, 363 B.R. at 378-388 (analyzing and dismissing these and other less common arguments in favor of allowing creditors unsecured deficiency claims).

A. Section 506 does apply in the surrender situation.

Several courts have held that section 506 is not relevant when the debtor surrenders collateral pursuant to section 1325(a)(5)(C). Since section 506 has no applicability under 1325(a)(5)(C), these courts conclude that the hanging paragraph has no effect on creditors claims where the property is being surrendered. Contrary to the holdings in these cases, however, the plain language of the hanging paragraph makes it equally applicable to section 1325(a)(5)(B) and 1325(a)(5)(C). See In re Williams, 2007 WL 2122131, *4 (Bankr. E.D. Va. July 19, 2007)(“The same language cannot mean one thing when applied to § 1325(a)(5)(B), and something different when applied to § 1325(a)(5)(C)”).

The argument that pre-BAPCPA § 506(a) had no application to surrender under § 1325(a)(5)(C) is misplaced. Rejecting this argument the court, in In re Ezell, 338 B.R. 330 (Bankr. E.D. Tenn. 2006), stated: [v]aluation of a creditor’s allowed secured claim under Pre-BAPCPA § 506(a) was ‘determined in light of the purpose of the valuation and of the proposed disposition or use of such property...’ 11 U.S.C.A. § 506(a) 2004. Upon surrender under Pre-BAPCPA § 1325(a)(5)(C), liquidation value was clearly the yardstick by which the allowed secured claim was determined, while, for cramdown [footnote omitted] purposes under Pre-BAPCPA § 1325(a)(5)(B), replacement value was the criteria. See Assoc. Commercial Corp. v. Rash., 520 U.S. 953 (1997). Id. at 339-40. An allowed secured claim arises, not as a consequence of a sale of the collateral pursuant to state law, but as a result of determining the extent by which the debt exceeds the value of the collateral through the application of § 506, whether that determination be by estimation for use under § 1325(a)(5)(B) or by surrender and eventual liquidation under § 1325(a)(5)(C).

Williams, 2007 WL 2122131 at *8; see also In re Gentry, 2006 WL 3392947 at *6 (use of liquidation value pre-BAPCPA did not render section 506 irrelevant). Regardless of whether the debtor intended to retain or surrender the collateral, section 506(a) assigned the formula for the split; the sale was simply the process by which the formula was applied and a creditor was granted an allowed unsecured claim by section 506(a) in the surrender situation as well as the retention situation. Id.; see also In re Nicely, 349 B.R. 600, 603 (Bankr. W.D. Mo. 2006).

If claims covered by the hanging paragraph are allowed secured claims and if section 506 no longer applies, the amount of the creditor's allowed secured claim is now the full amount of the debt for all parts of section 1325(a)(5). Thus, while the inapplicability of section 506 may no longer allow bifurcation of claims, the Code continues to allow debtors to surrender collateral in satisfaction of creditors' allowed secured claims

B. Bankruptcy law, not State law, determines the creditor's allowed unsecured claim.

The Seventh Circuit in In re Wright, takes the position that “Creditors don’t need § 506 to create, allow, or recognize security interests, which rest on contracts (and the UCC) rather than federal law.” 492 F.3d at 833; see also In re Rodriguez, 375 B.R. at 543; In re Zehrung, 351 B.R. at 678, Many other Circuit Courts of Appeals have followed in the footsteps of Wright without much additional analysis and without explaining how state law trumps the Bankruptcy Code. After surrender, Wright maintains that the creditor is entitled to its state law right to liquidate the collateral and retain an unsecured claim for the balance due. Id. This reasoning is flawed, however, because it fails to recognize the Code is not silent on the issue on the amount and nature of the creditor’s claim. Section 506 continues to apply with respect to all sections in the Bankruptcy Code other than section 1325(a)(5). Furthermore, as discussed above, the Code very specifically provides that the creditor’s allowed secured claim is satisfied with the surrender of the collateral. If the creditor has an allowed secured claim in the full amount of the debt, as in this case, there is no void to be filled by state law. Instead of applying section 1325(a)(5)(C) properly, the Wright court essentially renders the section a nullity by reading it out of the statute and failing to give it any effect. Because the debtor’s plan provided for “such claim”—the allowed secured claim in the full amount of the debt—by surrendering the property, the plan was entitled to confirmation. The debtor fully complied with section 1325(a)(5), the specific provision of the Code dictating the treatment of allowed secured claims for chapter 13 confirmation purposes.

Outside of bankruptcy, under state debtor-creditor law, the creditor may have had a state law claim for a deficiency upon disposition of the collateral. However, the issue in this case is whether the creditor has an “allowed unsecured claim” under the Bankruptcy Code. Under the Bankruptcy Code the creditor has no “allowed unsecured claim” if its “allowed secured claim” equals the total amount of the debt. State law determines creditors’ rights only to the extent that such rights are not modified by the Bankruptcy Code. See In re Vanduyne, 374 B.R. at 901 (“The Bankruptcy Code is federal law that preempts state law where such law is in conflict”), citing Pacific Gas and Elec. Co., v. State Energy Resources Conservation and Dev. Comm’n, 461 U.S. 190, 204, 103 S. Ct. 1713 (1983); In re Nichols, 440 F.3d 850, 854 (6th Cir. 2006)(stating that “Bankruptcy laws have long been construed to authorize the impairment of contractual obligations”). The Bankruptcy Code specifically permits debtors to modify the rights of secured creditors,⁹ including those with claims covered by the hanging paragraph. See 11 U.S.C. § 1322(b)(2). The hanging paragraph too modifies the nonbankruptcy rights of debtors and creditors. Rather than paralleling state law results, the hanging paragraph forces debtors, who wish to retain the collateral, to pay much more to the creditor than the creditor would actually receive were the vehicle repossessed and sold. Inversely, the debtor is also permitted to satisfy the creditor's "allowed secured claim" by surrendering the collateral. Consequently, even though such creditors might be entitled to a deficiency claim outside of bankruptcy, they are not entitled to an allowed unsecured claim for any deficiency here. In re Pinti, 363 B.R. 369, 375 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2007); In re Turkowitch, 355 B.R. at 129. Creditors should not be permitted to "have their cake and eat it too."

C. Eradication of the estate's interest.

The Rodriguez and Particka courts suggest that section 506 is inapplicable under section 1325(a)(5)(C) because the estate's interest in the collateral is extinguished upon plan confirmation. The reasoning of these courts fares no better than that of Wright. Upon confirmation of the debtor's plan, three things occur simultaneously: the debtor's plan is confirmed; the debtor relinquishes any rights in the collateral; and the allowed secured claim of the creditor is extinguished. That the estate may no longer have a continuing interest in the collateral is irrelevant because the creditor also no longer has an allowed secured claim.

⁹ The only exception to this general rule permitting modification is for claims held by creditors with security interest in real property that is the debtor's principal residence. See 11 U.S.C. § 1322(b)(2).

In summary, the hanging paragraph is not ambiguous nor does it lead to absurd results. If the effect of the hanging paragraph is to give creditors of covered claims "allowed secured claims" in the full amount of the debt, then surrender in full satisfaction of the debt is permitted. Such creditors are not entitled to a bifurcated claim and do not have an allowed unsecured claim after the surrender of the collateral. "This rule complies with the meaning of the statute, constitutes the fair treatment of secured creditors as envisioned by Congress (because it will encourage debtors to either pay the claim in full or promptly surrender the collateral) and is in harmony with the majority of the bankruptcy courts that have analyzed this issue." In re Turkowitch, 355 B.R. at 129.

VI. The Creditor's best guess as to legislative intent is insufficient to overcome the plain language of the statute.

Despite the dearth of legislative history on the hanging paragraph, creditors have routinely argued in hanging paragraph cases that Congressional intent in enacting the provision was solely to benefit creditors. See In re Kenney, 2007 WL 1412921 (Bankr. E.D. Va. May 10, 2007)(“Creditors argue that the hanging paragraph should always be read to provide heightened protection to 910 secured creditors, as that was the intent of Congress”), rev'd Tidewater Fin. Co. v. Kenney, 531 F.3d 312 (4th Cir. 2008); In re Brown, 346 B.R. 868 (Bankr. N.D. Fla. 2006)(“Wells Fargo contends that the absurdity of the result originates from the fact that the changes in the Code wrought by BAPCPA were enacted to enhance the rights of secured creditors in bankruptcy”). One court recently summarized the creditor's argument on the hanging paragraph as follows:

The crux of Ford Motor Credit's argument is that § 1325 was amended to protect the interests of the 910 creditor and thus the statute should be interpreted to give the interests of the secured 910 creditor increased protection. Ford Motor Credit is in essence requesting this Court to find that the statute on its face is contrary to the intent of the drafters.

In re Williams, 2007 WL 2122131 (Bankr. E.D. Va. Jul. 19, 2007). The Creditor in this case adopts a similar position by arguing that “the clear intent of the legislative history on the Hanging Paragraph is that Congress intended to provide more protection to creditors with purchase-money security interests.”¹⁰ Creditor’s Brief at 30.

The Creditor and the cases cited give significant weight to what is perceived as Congress’ intent. For example the Creditor states, without any citation, that “The clear intent of the legislative history on the Hanging Paragraph is that Congress intended to provide more protection to creditors with purchase-money security interests.” Creditor’s Brief at 32. However, nothing in the legislative history referred to by the Creditor directly supports this proposition. Id.; see also General Motors Acceptance Corp. v. Peaslee, 373 B.R. 252, 261 (W.D.N.Y. 2007)(stating that “the so-called ‘hanging paragraph’ of § 1325, was obviously intended to protect the interests of automobile dealers who provide financing for customers.”); In re Zehrung, 351 B.R. 675, 678 (W.D. Wis. 2006)(basing its decision on what it found to be the “likely” and “extremely unlikely” intent of Congress).

But what makes this intent “likely” or “obvious”? Certainly, the ¹⁰ There is no doubt that the hanging paragraph benefits holders of covered claims at the expense of other holders of allowed secured claims, holders of allowed unsecured claims and debtors, in some circumstances. For example, when debtors keep cars subject to the hanging paragraph, they will pay a higher allowed secured claim through the plan than they would have pre-2005. However, some obvious benefits to holders of covered claims does not mean that such creditors must win every dispute related to the interpretation of the hanging paragraph.

legislative history reflects no such intent. See In re Quick, 371 B.R. 459, 463 n.10 (B.A.P. 10th Cir. 2007)(“ Specifically, we do not agree that BAPCPA amendments that appear to benefit creditors must be interpreted in such a way as to benefit only creditors. In fact, many of the supposedly "pro-creditor" amendments appear reflective of the normal give and take of the legislative process.”). Indeed, such an argument disregards the fact that many parts of the bill, including the hanging paragraph, were compromised from previous versions. The final bill, as adopted contains provisions benefiting secured creditors, unsecured creditors, and debtors. There is no reason to interpret the 2005 amendments solely in favor of secured creditors at the expense of all others, including unsecured creditors.

To the extent such beliefs are based on the role of private groups advocating for the legislation, the Supreme Court has specifically counseled against inferring any such intent. Courts should not attribute to Congress an official purpose based on the motives of particular groups that lobbied for or against certain provisions. See Circuit City Stores v. Adams, 532 U.S. 105, 120, 121 S. Ct. 1302, 149 L.Ed 234 (2001)(private interest groups’ roles in lobbying for or against legislation provide a dubious basis from which to infer intent); see also Garcia v. United States, 469 U.S. 70, 76, 105 S. Ct. 479, 83 L.Ed.2d 474 (1984)(courts should look only to Committee Reports that “represent[] the considered and collective understanding of those [legislators] involved in drafting and studying the proposed legislation.”).

This Court should reject the Creditor’s suggestion which would lead to the unsupportable conclusion that creditors should always win in cases related to the 2005 amendments simply because creditors lobbied for the passage of the bill.

The language of the hanging paragraph should not be “interpreted” to match the Creditor’s view of what Congress “meant” to say. Rather the plain language of the statute should be conclusive, except in rare cases in which the literal application will produce a result demonstrably at odds with the intentions of the drafters.

CONCLUSION

For all the foregoing reasons, amicus respectfully requests that this Court affirm the decision of the bankruptcy court.

Respectfully submitted,

Carey D. Ebert
Principal Attorney for Amicus Curiae
Texas Bar No.: 05332500
1726 Chadwick Ct.
Suite 100
Hurst, Texas 76054
817-268-2468
817-510-0986 (fax)
cde@ebertlawoffices.com

On Brief:
Tara Twomey, Esq.
National Association of Consumer
Bankruptcy Attorneys

October 23, 2008

CERTIFICATE OF COMPLIANCE

This brief, exclusive of the certifications, tables of contents and authorities and the identity of counsel at the end of the brief, is 5745 words in text and footnotes as counted by Microsoft Word, the word processing system used to prepare this brief. This brief has been prepared in a proportionally spaced typeface using Microsoft Word in Times New Roman 14-point font.

I certify under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

Date: October 23, 2008

Carey D. Ebert
Principal Attorney for Amicus Curiae
Texas Bar No.: 05332500
1726 Chadwick Ct.
Suite 100
Hurst, Texas 76054
817-268-2468
817-510-0986 (fax)
cde@ebertlawoffices.com